Concentrating and having fun

THEATRE workshops and arts and crafts were just some of the things the West End Centre provided for children during half-term week.

The Aldershot arts centre always provides children's activities to keep them occupied when they're not in school and last week saw the centre's children's festival.

There was African drumming, a pottery for toddlers and a dancing session that showed people "how to use your body like a drum kit".

Aldershot Military Museum helped out by providing historical outfits for children to dress up in, and the week ended on Friday with a puppet version of a new Red Riding Hood story, called Red Riding Hood's Magic Purse. The Queen's Road centre also has a regular programme for children and adults. Call 01252 408040 for more details of the courses on offer.
